#2

Make sure you have enough food and water to see you through an emergency.

Emergencies happen

An emergency can happen at any time. The Government and emergency services are there to support you and your community.

Local authorities and our first responders will work at community level to support everyone's safety and well-being.

Emergencies may not happen often, but it is important to be prepared. This booklet will help you and your household prepare if the unexpected happens.

During an emergency, essential services such as power, water, communications or transport may be disrupted. Where possible, everyone should try to be prepared to support their needs in an emergency.

We have strength in our communities. During an emergency it is important to look out for one another.

Do what you can: Some preparation is better than no preparation at all.

How to be emergency ready

It is important to take the time to think about how we can take care of ourselves and our loved ones in the event of an emergency.

There are three steps:

1. Be aware.
2. Make a plan.
3. Stay connected.

Breaking down the three steps

1

Be aware

The kinds of emergencies we might be at risk of are events like storms, flooding, cyber attacks and disruptions to critical supply chains.

- How could these risks affect you and your household?
- Is your home, town or city exposed to any risks?
- Are you exposed to the risk more than other people?

2

Make a plan

- Use the checklist in this booklet to get ready for an emergency.
- Keep a list of regular medication you or your family require.
- Keep a copy of important numbers and documents in a safe and accessible place.
- Plan how you will keep animals safe in an emergency situation.

3

Stay connected

It is important you connect with family, friends and neighbours, to ensure a community-based approach to your safety and preparedness.

- Keep important emergency, family, and friends' contact numbers in a safe and accessible place.
- Talk to your neighbours to discuss how you might work together and share information and resources in the event of an emergency.
- Talk to your service provider if you are living in supported accommodation or temporary housing.
- Keep the contact details of any local community groups in your area to seek support if needed.
- Consider learning some basic first aid skills.
- Listen to local radio to stay up to date on conditions.

Store important documents in a resealable waterproof bag.

Make a plan

Maintaining an adequate supply of essential items is a great way to prepare for any emergency.

Having even a small amount of essential items can help you through an unexpected situation if everyday supplies are disrupted or unavailable.

The checklist that follows contains items that you and your household may need in the event of an emergency where you may lose power or water.

You may have many of these items in your household already. These items can be built up over time and stored in a safe and dry place for easy access if needed.

The checklist could help you stay safe and manage a range of emergency situations.

Do what you can: Some preparation is better than no preparation at all.

Your checklist

- ❑ Each person needs 2–3 litres of drinking water each day.
- ❑ Keep some bottled water in a cool, dark place.
- ❑ Only store it for as long as the expiry date on the bottle.

- ❑ Close windows and doors and stay in one room for warmth.

- ❑ Keep matches or a lighter in a safe place.
- ❑ Know the location of gas and electricity shutoff points.

Medicine

#4

The number to dial in an emergency is 112 or 999.

Support your community

As a community, it is important that we support the people who need it most, and ensure they know we are there to help if required.

Support can be something as simple as checking in on a family member, neighbour or friend, if it is safe to do so. Letting them know you are there can help someone feeling isolated or vulnerable.

Contacting emergency services

In an emergency dial 112 or 999. The emergency operator will ask which emergency service you need, and connect you with them immediately. It is important to keep your phone on as the emergency services may need to call you back to get more information. In a medical emergency, continue to monitor the person's condition and call back if it changes.

Make sure all members of your household know your Eircode.

You can find your Eircode at eircode.ie.

If you need to leave home

Despite all precautions, it may still be necessary to leave your home or business. Knowing what to do is a key part of being prepared and it can make a real difference. Having a written plan can be helpful, especially in situations where phones, internet or electricity are not available.

Key steps

- Identify what you would need to take with you if you had to leave home.
- Complete the final pages of this booklet, keep them safe, and save a photo of them on your phone.
- Always cooperate with instructions from emergency services and local authorities.
- Be aware of the potential risks that you might face, listen to local radio to stay up to date on conditions where possible.
- Stay connected with the people who can help in an emergency.
- Ensure important documents are easily accessible and kept somewhere safe. A resealable waterproof bag is also recommended.
